Saidi Dates: The Golden Treasure of the Oasis

this variety is the pride of Egypt's Western Desert oases. Renowned for their resilient texture and deep, honey-like flavor, Saidi dates are a semi-dry variety that strikes the perfect balance between sweetness and substance.

Saidi dates are prized for their consistency and meatiness. While they are naturally more compact and dense than the Medjoul, they are carefully sorted to ensure a premium, uniform appearance in every pack:

Standard: Ideal for industrial use, dicing, and high-volume retail.

Large (Select): Hand-picked for their plumpness and smooth skin; the preferred choice for consumer snack packs.

Extra Large: The "Elite" grade of the Saidi harvest, featuring the highest flesh-to-pit ratio and a soft, chewy bite.

Barhi Dates: The Golden Honey Drop

Barhi date is widely considered the sweetest and creamiest of all varieties, often enjoyed in its yellow, crunchy stage (Khalal) or its fully ripe, honey-soft stage (Rutab). Unlike other dates, the Barhi is prized for its unique transition from a crisp, apple-like texture with hints of astringent sweetness to a decadent, butterscotch-flavored delicacy that literally dissolves on the tongue.

Premium Yellow (Khalal): Harvested on the branch, these are firm, crunchy, and bright yellow—ideal for those who prefer a fresh, light sweetness.

Gourmet Soft (Rutab): As they ripen, they turn amber and become incredibly soft and translucent, marking the peak of their "honey-drop" flavor.

Sukkary Dates: The Royal "Sugary" Delight

Sukkary dates are the undisputed favorites of the Arabian Peninsula, named for their high sugar content ("Sukkar" meaning sugar). Often called the "Queen of Dates," they are distinguished by their golden-yellow skin and a unique texture that transitions from a crisp outer crunch to a soft, melt-in-your-mouth center. They are a staple for those who seek a naturally sweet, candy-like treat with a refined aesthetic.

Sukkary Mofatal (Dry/Crisp): These are firm with a crystallized outer layer, offering a satisfying crunch and a long-lasting caramel finish.

Sukkary Rutab (Soft/Moist): Hand-picked at peak ripeness, these are incredibly succulent and dark golden, often served chilled to preserve their creamy texture.

Premium/Jumbo: Large, plump selections with unblemished skins, reserved for high-end retail and luxury hospitality.
